Celebrate the Wew Year of the Trees

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

by Rabbi Alan B. Lucas

Dealing with an Intolerant Relative or Friend

A fter minyan recently, two of our congregants shared a question with me. I tried to answer them as best I could but when I left them I was not satisfied with what I had offered them. I turned the subject over and over in my mind and finally wrote them a more thoughtful response the next morning.

Their question had been prompted by the fact that family gettogethers were becoming increasingly tense as certain family members felt compelled to challenge, even attack them for their Conservative religious lifestyle. Zealously convinced that anything different from the Orthodox way this particular family member had chosen to live his own life was inauthentic. He felt compelled to cajole, harangue and even harass these lovely people who were turning to me for advice as to how they might respond in the face of what they anticipated would be future confrontations.

Once upon a time we used to joke that the two topics you always avoided in polite company were religion and politics. However it seems that these are the only things we want to talk about these days. In the past, religion and politics were to be avoided as we knew that people had strong opinions about them and family or social gatherings were just not the place to "get into it." Not so today. The lines have been drawn. There is "my way," and "the wrong way." When confronted with zealous relatives or friends who challenge and criticize our beliefs, our religious lifestyle or our political affiliations — what is a person to do? Here is the answer I ultimately shared with them (Please feel free to let me know if you find it helpful to you):

Dealing with intolerance

You are at a party, or a family dinner and you are confronted by a friend or relative who does not share your religious orientation or beliefs and they seem to have decided that it is their responsibility to convince you that you are wrong and need to see the light and come over to their side.

Point #1 — This is not about right or wrong. It is not even about what you believe or what they believe. This is about their attitude — not your beliefs. It really does not matter if you are being attacked from the right or from the left. Unfortunately there is plenty of intolerance and condescension to go around. Intolerance is not the province of one political party or one religious orientation. It is about their inability to live and let live and their need to convert the whole world — or at least you — to the righteousness of their cause. The issue is not their politics or their religion, but their attitude towards politics or religion.

Once you understand that the issue is one of attitude rather than belief, you can avoid the biggest mistake that most people make and that is enter into a debate about your beliefs versus theirs. DO NOT DO THIS!!! This is a no-win proposition. No matter how erudite or clever or persuasive you may be — you will get nowhere with this approach. It is important that you understand when you are standing opposite a true believer — (whether it is someone who is righteously dedicated to their particular political beliefs or righteously dedicated to their religious beliefs) that for them this is no longer a matter of rational debate — their conviction has moved way beyond any hope that something you might say will influence their thought or belief.

The goal is not to try and change their mind but their attitude, not their head but their heart. The goal is not to try and get them to understand that they are wrong and you are right — but to try and get them to appreciate that just as they believe in the rightness of their cause — so too do you believe in the rightness of yours — and just as you are prepared to respect them for the depth of their faith — so too do you want them to appreciate the depth of yours.

So how does one achieve this?

1. Be a good listener. Don't enter into an argument which only aggravates them (and you) — but use their attack as an opportunity to try and understand them. Acknowledge aspects of what they believe that you do find admirable. "I really admire the fact that you... tell me more how you achieved that aspect of your life." Ask sincere questions.

A sincere question is not a set up that is posed to show why you think they are wrong — but a genuine attempt to understand. People love to talk about themselves and true believers are always glad to speak about how they saw the light. By getting them to share with you their journey you have already changed a heated confrontation into a pleasant conversation.

2. Instead of responding to their lecture with a lecture of your own — ask them questions that try and get them to empathize with you. This may not be easy — there are people who are completely incapable of empathy — but most people are, with time and patience, able to see another side of things. Ask questions like — "Why do you think I vote the way I do?" "Why do you think I attend the synagogue?" "Why do you think I do not do things the way you do?" The goal here is to try and challenge them to see the world through your eyes. Be prepared for a snarky or dismissive response: "Because you are lazy!" "Because you are stupid." "Because you have been duped by x, y or z." DON'T GET ANGRY OR s we celebrate the New Year 2019 we casually refer to it As the secular New Year but it is far from secular for those who commemorate it as 2019 years since the birth of Christianity. While our New Year celebrations as Jews may be secular indeed, our Christian neighbors celebrate it as the holy and religious birthday of their religion. Christianity is a wonderful religion that promotes care, concern and love much like Judaism does but the danger for us living as Jews in America new sort of Jew, proud of our today means that not only are we exposed heritage but ready to move in to other religions' holy days, we can also freely celebrate them if we want to, directions that will revive our even if only in a secular manner and this Jewish observance by making it may encourage dangerous assimilation more tenable, touchable and if we aren't careful. While not many Jews "celebrate" Christmas, you'll be hard pressed to find a Jew that doesn't celebrate New Year's Eve in some fashion, even some Orthodox Jews. and herein lies our dilemma. One hundred and thirty years ago, before the turn of the last century, Jews lived in the Diaspora largely isolated from the mainstream populations of their host countries and celebrating others' holidays was unthinkable, even life-threatening. This ironically served to unite us and keep us a closed group as a nation and provided Jews around the world a common reason to strive to survive as Jews. Assimilation was discouraged and intermarriage rates were kept quite low. Nowadays in America we find ourselves with a whole other threat. Our freedom to assimilate at will and celebrate our holidays freely as well as their holidays, has left us without uniting forces against us and while free will should have helped us cling to our traditions, we have ironically turned towards assimilation in alarming numbers. Pew reports indicate that synagogue memberships and attendance are at an all-time low while, intermarriage rates are at an all-time high. The freedom to celebrate as we wish has had an adverse effect on our Jewish observance and threatens to eventually end Judaism as we have known it for millennia. In the not-too-distant future it will exist highly assimilated and be largely made up of families with mixed religions and little Jewish conviction. Is Jewish isolationism the only answer to this? Anti-semitism forced us to huddle together, holding fast to each other to avoid extermination, but I pray that even though anti-semitism is reportedly on the rise again, it will not be the force needed to pull us back from the brink of extinction, rather Jewish survival and flowering should come instead from our own realization of our Jewish potential and how beautiful our own tradition can be if reinvented for a new generation. Observance of Judaism must be re-envisioned as to not be so difficult to a point where it is driving away our youth. I believe that

G-d intended us to enjoy our traditions, not turn them into instruments of chastity. Kashrut, tzniut (modesty) and the observance of Shabbat were meant to keep us holy and "close to the fire," commitment to find ways not divide us to the point where my brother's to reinvent ourselves as a or sister's observance isn't good enough for me. These divisive forces will continue to drive us apart towards assimilation and ultimately towards destruction. So, should we wish each other a happy New Year? Absolutely, but let's do it the way we did a couple months ago at our own New Year, Rosh Hashannah, by making a commitment to find ways to reinvent each of ourselves as a new sort of Jew, proud of our heritage but ready to move in directions that will revive our Jewish observance by making it more tenable, touchable and lovable. Only then can we hope to see our children embrace the fun aspects of Judaism as they do the fun aspects of their neighbors' religious observances and maybe then we can hope to turn the tide of assimilation that threatens us.

Relationships Matter

Since arriving in July we have had a wonderful number of months together at Temple Beth Sholom. We have experienced so much as a community in such a short time and I feel grateful to have been a part of it. Allow me to note a few highlights.

Our High Holiday services were fantastic! Each space in which we held services were filled with people and filled with the energy that a new year brings. From our youngest congregants to our most veteran, we started 5779 with great enthusiasm and excitement. In October I was welcomed officially as your Associate Rabbi with a very meaningful installation dinner and service. Sari, the kids and I feel so blessed to be a part of a community which values their rabbinic leadership, that is eager to learn and grow in their Judaism, and knows how to let lose and enjoy each other's company.

Cantor Barnoy had a concert, and what a concert it was! Who doesn't like dueling pianos? The Sisterhood Torah Fund dinner was also a smashing success despite being hampered a bit by a snow storm. The ECC enjoyed Shabbat together with a musical service led by yours truly and again followed by a dinner filled with the spirit of Shabbat that only preschoolers can bring.

Our Hanukkah celebrations were filled with light and love. The religious school skillfully lit the candles each night showing off what they had learned about the holiday. Our MBS students heard from Rabbi Arie Hasit about his dreams of moving to Israel and becoming a rabbi, and made blankets to be donated to the needy in our community.

Each of these programs, each of these events, was another opportunity to connect and build relationships. For all of our success in the past number of months, what I am most proud of, and am most focused on, is continuing the deep work of building my relationship with you. I am working hard on remembering your name. Please feel free to offer it and please don't take offense if I ask for yours. I want to hear what is going on in your lives. What is happening with your children, with your grandchildren, how things are at work? I am curious about your lives and the ways in which TBS can be a vibrant feature within them.

A fundamental role of the synagogue is to help increase mitzvoth in the world. We offer many opportunities to engage in the world of Torah and to fulfill our sacred obligations to each other and to the world. There is a Hasidic interpretation of the word mitzvah that teaches that one of the meanings of the word is connection. In other words, through the performance of mitzvoth we connect. We connect to our Creator, we connect to each other, and we connect to the world.

In the coming months, I will be offering some opportunities to get together with me outside the synagogue, so that we can continue connecting in a more casual setting. These will be organized by constituent groups — ECC families, Religious School families, Sisterhood, Men's Club etc. — to give each gathering a bit more focus and to enable me to listen to each group's needs and desires more specifically. Please watch your email for details. I look forward to being able to spend this time with you and to deepen our initial relationships that have been so positive.

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

by Rebecca Altman

I cannot believe that it is January already and I am halfway through my second year as President of Temple Beth Sholom. As 2018 comes to a close and 2019 is beginning, I want to reflect on the past and express my hopes for the future. I want to start by thanking all of you, the congregants and supporters of our Temple Beth Sholom community. I often sit on the bima on Shabbat morning or look around the room during an event and think about how lucky we are to have such a vibrant congregation. I realize how fortunate we are to have about 100 people here on a Shabbat morning even if we are not celebrating a simcha and to have events and programs just about every day and evening. At our calendar meeting in June, we often have to compromise on dates because there is so much activity and not enough days to accomplish all.

Sometimes, I am asked by people why they should join Temple Beth Sholom. Why, in 2019, do people still need synagogues when there are so many other alternatives? Your temple is there for you and your family always, whether for the big life cycle events, to give your children and grandchildren a proper Jewish education that will remain with them throughout their lives, to provide a minyan in which to say kaddish for a cherished family member, or to provide sanctuary and emotional healing in times of need. It is a religious, educational and social community.

What can you do for Temple Beth Sholom to ensure that we thrive into the future? There are so many ways to support the synagogue, with time or resources

We have many committees which are all led by volunteers and we would love your input and involvement. Here are a few of them.

 $\begin{tabular}{ll} \textbf{Membership Committee} & -- & \textbf{Responsible for obtaining, integrating and retaining members.} \end{tabular}$

Budget and Finance Committee — Responsible for the examination, verification and general review of the books of account and the funds of the congregation. Meets October, February, and April/May on a Sunday morning.

Club TBS Committee — Help plan event on March 2, 2019.

House Committee — Has general charge of maintenance and repair of the Temple buildings and facilities. Meets monthly.

Board of Education — Overall supervision of the Early Childhood Center, Religious School and the High School. Meets about once a month on Thursdays at 8 pm.

Religious Affairs Committee — Present a set of guiding principles for religious services in synagogue. Meets about once a month on Mondays at 8 PM.

Chesed Committee — Concerned with the good and welfare of the synagogue.

Camp Committee — Overall supervision of the summer program.

Yom Hashoah Committee — Help plan Yom Hashoah Program in May.

Inclusion Committee — Help make the synagogue more inclusive. Special needs programs for children, determine special accommodations for adults.

We also have many lawyers and educators who advise us throughout the year. Please let us know how you want to become involved and we will find a place for you. Our ECC and Religious School have active Parent Associations which are always looking for volunteers as well.

There are also many ways to give financial support to TBS. Thank you to those of you who are in the Joshua Society and Rabbi's Circle and who give so generously. We have several funds that are available to make donations in memory of a loved one or in honor of a simcha. For $18 you can show somebody that you are thinking of them and can help benefit TBS financially. There is a full list of funds at the back of this bulletin. I would like to highlight just a few of these funds

Max Greenfield Bible Fund — (minimum $75) — Honor or memorialize someone with an Etz Hayim Bible. Dedications are acknowledged with a bookplate on the inside cover of the book.

Harold Kalb Prayer Book Fund — (minimum $36) — Honor or memorialize someone with a Sim Shalom prayer book. Dedications are acknowledged with a bookplate on the inside cover of the siddur.

Lisa & Jim Schlesinger Camp Ramah Fund — Donations are used for TBS children to attend Camp Ramah.

Wingate USY Scholarship Fund — Donations provide scholarships for USY programs.

Milton Horowitz Religious School Fund — Donations support Religious School programs.

Malka's Fund for Lifelong Learning — Donations support educational programs for all members of the TBS community.

Bernice and Albert B. Cohen Endowment Fund — Interest income from donations is used for the ongoing care and maintenance of our synagogue. Donations in any amount are welcome. A minimum donation of $5000 is required for a plaque on the dedication wall in the lobby.

Arthur Goldberg Social Action & Cultural Arts Program Fund — Donations are used for special cultural events.

Ruth & Sidney Kahan Chesed Fund — Donations support the work of the Chesed Committee which provides comfort to mourners, and to ill and homebound members.

Zelman College Textbook Fund — Donations are used to reimburse TBS college students for the purchase of Jewish Studies textbooks.

Rabbi Ario S. Hyams Judaica Museum Fund — Donations are used to support the Judaica museum.

Kiddush Fund — Donations are accumulated and used for special kiddushes on holidays.

Rabbi's Fund — Donations are used for various purposes at the discretion of the Rabbi, in particular, anonymous support for those requiring assistance Inclusion Fund — Donations will be used to make the synagogue more inclusive. This will include special needs programs for children and special accommodations for adults.

Yahrzeit Fund — Remember a loved one with this contribution to the synagogue.

Thank you for all of your support for me, the Executive Board, Board of Trustees and the Temple Beth Sholom community.

Wishing you and your families a healthy, happy and peaceful new year!

FROM MAKOM by Rabbi Uri Allen, Makom Director

Things are happening over at Makom! Just a few weeks ago our MBS students had a great Hanukkah party! They heard from Rabbi Arie Hasit, a rabbi from Israel, about following your dreams. The most interesting part though was probably that Rabbi Hasit was Mark Zuckerberg's roommate at Harvard! We also made blankets that will be donated to families in need.

Active8, our monthly social action project got off to a great start. We spent some time at Masbia, a food bank and soup kitchen in Queens. It was very rewarding to be able to help and contribute.

MEETINGS IN JANUARY & FEBRUARY:

DEFENSIVE. Laugh and say — "Maybe, but do you think there might possibly be any other reasons?" Again — the conversation may fail here — you may truly be dealing with somebody who does not have the capacity for empathy. If in fact you are dealing with such a person — there is no purpose to continuing the conversation. You might end it by saying — "Thank you for sharing your thoughts with me – you have given me a lot to think about... and I hope you will think about the question I asked you and maybe we can continue this when we have more to talk about.

3. Since you now understand this is ultimately about attitude and not about facts — you must constantly reiterate (especially if this is family) "I love you despite our differences, I hope you can find a way to love me as well." Wouldn't it be a shame if the only people we could love or live with were those who agreed with us and were just like us? I sometimes fear that is the kind of world we are headed for, but we can try to prevent this from happening.

There is a joke that was originally told by the comedian Emo Philips that captures the challenge of our times:

"Once I saw this guy on a bridge about to jump. I said, "Don't do it!" He said, "Nobody loves me." I said, "God loves you. Do you believe in God?"

He said, "Yes." I said, "Are you a Christian or a Jew?" He said, "A Christian." I said, "Me, too! Protestant or Catholic?" He said, "Protestant." I said, "Me, too! What franchise?" He said, "Baptist." I said, "Me, too! Northern Baptist?" He said, "Northern Baptist." I said, "Me, too! Northern Conservative Baptist or Northern Liberal Baptist?"

He said, "Northern Conservative Baptist." I said, "Me, too! Northern Conservative Baptist Great Lakes Region, or Northern Conservative Baptist Eastern Region?" He said, "Northern Conservative Baptist Great Lakes Region." I said, "Me, too!"

Northern Conservative Baptist Great Lakes Region Council of 1879, or Northern Conservative Baptist Great Lakes Region Council of 1912?" He said, "Northern Conservative Baptist Great Lakes Region Council of 1912." I said, "Die, heretic!" And I pushed him over."

The challenge of our times is to learn to love and embrace those who are different — to live with those with whom we disagree. It is called pluralism — and it is what we believe.

Bat-Sheva Slavin is honored with the METNY Schechter Award for Jewish Art & Music (Museums & Exhibits)

B ezalel was the artisan chosen by God to use his craft ability to design and work the tabernacle. When I think of Bat-Sheva Slavin, I think of her as the artisan amongst us who possesses the craft to transform our temple's lobby into a Judaic Museum. She tells a story of our temple & Judaic history, both past and present, through an infinite number of mediums. For example, Bat-Sheva has told the story of our congregation's connection with Chanukah by displaying a collection of our congregant's dreidels and menorahs. She has collected photos and documents to illustrate our families' connections with Israel. She has the ability to look at history through numerous lenses and present them in a meaningful and aesthetically pleasing way. I personally love when she uses artifacts of our members to create the exhibits. Bat-Sheva has a plethora of knowledge of Jewish artists and topics and is familiar with many resources, resulting in exhibits throughout the years that are educational, enlightening, sometimes entertaining and whimsical. We are blessed to have our own Bezalel, Bat-Sheva Slavin.

elcome to 2019! I would like to wish everyone a year filled with laughter and love.

The new year brings a lot of exciting events to the Early Childhood Center. The Toddlers will be inviting their families to Shabbat Twogether on Friday, January 18th. Songs will be sung, blessings will be recited and challah and grape juice will be enjoyed.

One of my favorite events is happening on Saturday, January 26th. Horray For Havdalah is a special time for our Pre-K classes and their families to come to school in the evening. The room is dark and the beautiful rituals of Havdalah are followed. Cantor Barnoy will lead us in an interactive service using all of our senses.

On February 12th, we have our annual PJ Shema Party. What a fun night! The children and teachers come to school in their pajamas.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOLby Sharon Solomon, Religious School Director

How to help your child with ease in learning the Hebrew language

A s Jews, Hebrew is an integral part of our heritage. Learning Hebrew is more than studying the language on its own, we should understand where we came from and how to connect basic words and phrases to our everyday life. It is our goal that every student in the Religious School feel comfortable using Hebrew as second nature in their conversations, be able to participate in services on Shabbat, holidays and ultimately to read Torah and Haftorah at their B'nei Mitzvah.

Continuous assessments and evaluations are looked at closely to determine what the best methods in teaching our students effectively are. What we found is that there is no "magic" way to acquire and obtain strong Hebrew skills. Language acquisition only comes from practicing and more practice, to use the words we learn on a daily basis and continue to study, making Hebrew part of our lives.

Language experts tell us that to really learn a language, one must immerse themself in the language that they wish to learn. So do we all need to move to Israel to be engrossed with the Hebrew language?

Well, that would be a dream but the reality is that we live in America and are immersed in a different language and culture altogether. So how do we bridge the gap in language acquisition and still live in another culture?

The top five tips for language acquisition are:

- 1. Use Hebrew words in as much conversation as possible.
- 2. Practice and study as much time as you can.
- 3. Go to "shul" temple on Shabbat and make Tefillah part of your week.
- 4. Start with the most common one hundred words.
- 5. Listen to Hebrew music and keep the language alive in your head as much as possible.

When learning a second language one must have continuous engagement in the language. You also need a partner to help you stay motivated. Parents who want their children to succeed and achieve results in fluency of the language may need to be their child's partner in practice. Also, learning Hebrew only for the sake of learning to pray will not keep it relevant and interesting. Learning Hebrew as a spoken language will be much more of a motivator.

Remember, learning a new language is a challenge, but it can be such a fun exercise. This can be a "family challenge" and can be enormously fulfilling. As long as one remembers that the "challenge" in learning a new language is a fun and exciting venture.

It requires one to step out of their comfort zone. Keep in mind that the opportunity of learning the language is also an opportunity to learn about Israel culture, etc.

There are many amazing websites for young children to learn Hebrew. Below are sites for you and your children to explore.

I challenge you to dig deeper into Hebrew learning acquisition with your child and most importantly have fun with it. The Hebrew language is an essential part of our DNA and by embracing the language together with your children you will build a stronger bond to your past and lay a more solid foundation for your children's future.

MEN'S CLUB CORNER

by Evan Wagner, President

he year is moving very fast at Men's Club, happy holidays and a Happy New Year. We keep having events that everyone is talking about. One might think I actually enjoy this. Truth be told I do, I like the friends that have been made and knowing if I need any help, people are just an email away and willing to do whatever is needed.

Over 100 people turned out for comedy night. Everyone had a great time. I want to say thank you to everyone who showed up. The comics were funny, and a nice evening was had by all. Special thanks to Alan Goldstein for helping, and Eddie and the custodial staff for setting everything up. I can't wait for next year to see how many more people show up.

We then make our world famous Latkes for the Hebrew School for Chanukah, always a special event.

My last Bulletin column was right at the time of the wine making. We had so much fun crushing and pressing the wine. Again, we the ground is covered with a beautiful white blanket.

This year we had our first snow surprisingly on November 15 which was exactly on the night of our Annual Sisterhood Membership Dinner! Many braved the snow to pay tribute to Beth Eichenholtz, as she was honored for her dedication to being a longtime Torah Fund supporter, and for living a life dedicated to Torah. We had a wonderful night together and were entertained by the great performance of jazz singer Ghazal Mizrahi. Thanks to all who supported us for making that night possible.

On Sunday, November 18th, we participated in our annual Neighbors Helping Neighbors coat drive in conjunction with TANS (Tikkun Alliance of the North Shore) and our synagogue partner, Temple Sinai. Our congregants were very generous with their donations of clean and wearable, warm coats. The donation of children's coats was greatly appreciated. A special thanks to our volunteers who took enormous care to make sure that everyone was treated with respect and dignity; Susan Lipper, Natalie Postelnek, Esther Meth, Joan Levick, Arlene Katz, Cindy and David Feldman, Lance Kessler and Phyllis Pellman. Thank you to Lance for donating brand new outerwear and beautiful winter accessories. The need remains great. We hope to respond to this increased demand to help our neighbors next year with even more coats. Think about buying coats on sale in the next few months and putting them away for next year's drive.

The women of Sisterhood like to party, but we always make sure to remember those who need our help. At our Sisterhood Chanukah celebration on Thursday, Dec. 6th, we collected and packaged individual welcome totes of bath towels and toiletries to be distributed to women of the Broken But Not Destroyed shelter, upon their arrival (often with only the clothes they are wearing). Under the direction of Kayde Thompson, this facility in Franklin Square is so much more than just a shelter. It is a place for women (and their children) to regroup and break the cycle of homelessness. If you are interested in visiting and learning more, please contact Phyllis Pellman or Natalie Postelnek, our VPs of Tikun Olam.

On January 3rd at 8 PM, Ellen Ritz, who is president of NAMI Queens/Nassau, and also on the Board of NYS NAMI (National Alliance on Mental Illness), will be making a presentation titled How Families and others can make a difference in the success of someone struggling. Ellen will speak about several mental health disorders, current treatments, and how you can change the life of someone struggling with anxiety, depression, or bipolar disorder. This presentation is open to the whole congregation.

Join us for Lunch & Learn at 11:30 on January 8, with our guest speaker, Dr. Norman Fried who will talk about Building a Stonger and More Authenic Self. On February 5, Rabbi Cara Weinstein Rosenthal present a discussion: From Persian Queen to Jewish American Princess.

Nadine Kesten has chosen wonderful films for The Molly Chernofsky, z"I Film Community Cinema Series 2019. Some films may be controversial, but all are enjoyable and may lead to interesting conversations. The series will be starting on January 10. Hope to see you there! Please note that our video system has been updated and its running well. Nothing is better than to watch good movies together in the cold winter time. Watch for the fliers.

Mark your calendar for Sisterhood Games Day, January 16 at 10:30 am. More information to follow.

Interested in learning about Persian rugs? On January 29 at 7:45 PM our guest speakers Lida Lavender & Kami Ohebshalom will make a presentation: The History and Story Behind Persian Rugs. This program is FREE & open to all Sisterhood ladies lovingly made packages for Broken But Not Destroyed at our Hanukkah party.

Don't miss our Rabbinic Lecture with Rabbi Alan B. Lucas on February 7 at 8:00 PM. Come join us and be a part of our amazing programs.

Have a happy New Year & a warm winter!

This year TBS has identified a "Wish List" to guide all of those who are inspired to donate financially!

TEMPLE BETH SHOLOM HAS A LONG, RICH HISTORY OF SERVING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY OF ROSLYN.

Since 1951, we have provided a wide tent, a nurturing spiritual home in which Jews are welcome in good times and in times of need. We are known for inspirational worship, celebration of life cycle events, creative Jewish education, exceptional clergy and leadership. We offer three outstanding religious schools, as well as cutting edge adult education programs, and unequaled family learning programs.

TBS is a proud, generous, caring Jewish community. Members are frequently moved to demonstrate their support of our goals, both as volunteers and with financial donations. We appreciate their gifts of time and money: they are all gifts from the heart.

For more information, please call Donna Bartolomeo, Executive Director at 516-621-2288 or Morty Schaja, Vice President of Finance and Fundraising, fundraising@tbsroslyn.org.

"Why I Became a Minyanaire" by David Wasserman

It has been nearly 10 years since my father passed away. During my year of mourning, I was supported daily by our devoted clergy and our TBS family, my TBS family. And I don't say it lightly when I refer to my TBS family. The members of our shul who devote one hour in the morning and generally less than one hour in the evening, to be there for their fellow TBS members to say kaddish in accordance with our sacred traditions, are truly and unequivocally family. Who else but family accepts you without conditions? Who else but family responds to a call at 6:45 am with, "Of course, I will be there in 10 minutes"?

It has been nearly 10 years that I have been attending minyan once and twice daily, to be there for members of my TBS family, as they seek to honor and respect their departed. At a time when our society is showing less and less compassion for our fellow man, this simple act of being there to support a neighbor during their darkest days of grief, is a mitzvah that is not easily matched.

TBS is a special place, because it is made up of special people; People who care.

The TBS daily minyan was so important for me as I was grieving the loss of my father; and the TBS daily minyan continues to be important to me, as a way to give of myself to our community.

Giving money is an important aspect of tzadaka, and vital to sustaining the operations of our shul. But giving your time to the daily minyan, is a form of tzedakah that is so very important for our souls and for the sanctity of our community.

Please consider giving an hour or less, and picking a day a week, or a day a month to attend minyan to be there for a member of your TBS family as they seek to glorify and sanctify G-d and the memory of a loved one by saying the kaddish.

David

We know what it takes to make a strong Jewish community. Doing our job well is just the beginning.

We believe to be a good funeral director, you should serve the community in times of growth and happiness as well as times of grief. It's not surprising we've served the Jewish community for over 100 years. How we've served is the surprising part. David Rubin and his entire staff work tirelessly in serving the Jewish community, but then, that's part of our philosophy and tradition. We believe to be a good funeral director, you should serve and give back to the community.
